Burglars Hit Two Places In Mokena, 1 At Frankfort

Burglars hit two places in Mokena and one in Frankfort on Wednesday night of last week making off with approximately $350 of food and merchandise, an undetermined amount of money and two acetylene cutting torches, with tanks of fuel and hoses.

The torches were taken from the shop of the Swanberg Implement Co., of Wolf road, Mokena, and the merchandise from the food mart next door north, the Park and Shop, operated by Ordman Brothers, Lemont. The place entered at Frankfort was the Standard Industrial Compounds Co., Center road, Frankfort. Twelve silver dollars were taken there.

Force was used in entering each of the three places, according to Deputies John Shelley and Robert Munson, investigators from the Sheriff's office.

They believe at least three persons were involved and are of the opinion it was the same crew that broke into a food market at Channahon Wednesday night. Frozen foods, meats, and cigarettes were taken at both places. The amount stolen from Park and Shop was valued at $350, according to the investigators report. The cash drawer in the coke machine was also emptied but the amount is undetermined.

Entry at the Swanberg Implement Co. and the Park and Shop is believed to have taken place around 1:15. Entry at the Frankfort place is believed to have taken place much later. The Standard Industrial firm makes compounds used in the treatment of steels.

The cutting torches, of course, can be used in burning into a safe. Besides taking the torches at Swanberg's the burglars also ransacked the desks and offices, apparently looking for money.

All Saints Church Buys Site On La Grange Road

A parcel of land on LaGrange Road, adjacent to the Carl Sandburg high school, will be the site for the new All Saints' Lutheran church of Frankfort. The Rev. Norman A. Hjelm, pastor of All Saints', has announced that nearly eight acres of land have been purchased by the board of American Missions of the Augustana Lutheran church to serve as the location of the local parish's eventual church home. The purchase was made from Gaylord J. Minne, owner of the property.

The land, located on the west side of LaGrange Road at about 134th street, has a frontage of three hundred feet and a depth of nearly one thousand feet. The lot is immediately south of and adjacent to the Carl Sandburg High School property. Pastor Hjelm has indicated that eventual plans call for a complete complex of church buildings, including facilities for an extensive young peoples' program. It is hoped that the first unit of the church can be constructed during 1961.

Natl. Merit Scholarship Exams Set For March 11

The national merit scholarship program is a nationwide search for students who demonstrate extraordinary ability to benefit from a college education. This program is conducted by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, an independent, non-profit organization established in 1955. During the first five years, NMSC and sponsors have contributed direct financial assistance to nearly 4,000 students and their colleges.

The number of scholarships awarded in any year depends upon the extent of sponsor participation in the program.

The stipend, or amount of financial need, is adjusted to the individual case. The minimum stipend is usually $100 per year. The maximum stipend is $1,500 per year, or $6,000 for the four years. The merit scholarship constitutes a form of educational insurance for the stipend may be adjusted during the term of the scholarship if there is a significant change in the financial situation of the recipient's family.

The scholar is completely responsible for making arrangements with the college of his choice for fulfilling its entrance requirements, and for selecting his course of study leading to one of the usual baccalaureate degrees.

The NMSC, a three-hour test of educational development, is prepared by Science Research Associates and provides scores in five areas, plus a total score. The examination emphasis is on a broad intellectual skills — on understanding of and ability to use what has been learned rather than on sheer knowledge of facts. The five individual subtests are: English usage, mathematics usage, social studies, natural sciences, reading, and word usage. In May the school will receive individual reports of your five subtest scores, total scores, and average scores.

The national merit scholarship qualifying test will be administered at Carl Sandburg high school, Saturday, March 11. The fee for taking the test is $1. If students are unable to pay, and their counselor has strongly urged them to take the examination, other arrangements may be made.

The test will be given at Lincoln-Way high school March 7. The same fee of $1 per pupil will be charged.

New Year's Fire Routs CCH Family

Stanley Sokolowski, of 18010 Thomas Lane, Country Club Hills is in St. James hospital Chicago Heights, suffering from cuts and shock as a result of a fire that swept the family's dwelling early New Year's day. But for the fact that Stanley, Jr., 7 years old, woke up at 7 o'clock, it is possible that some of the family might have perished. The boy discovered the house filled with smoke and roused his parents.

The mother groped her way to the bed occupied by the youngest child, Robert, 2, and carried him to safety. In the meantime the father, finding that smoke and flame had cut off exit thru the living room, smashed a window in one of the bedrooms and pushed the children outside into the snow. There were four youngsters who escaped in this manner — three Sokolowskis, Sammy, 12; Stanley, and Joey 5, and a neighbor child who had stayed all night at the Sokolowski's home, Ricky Van Tichelt.

Sokolowski then backtracked thru the bedrooms to make certain everyone was out and then went thru the window, ingetting out he suffered severe cuts on his left arm and stomach from glass fragments in the frame and it was also discovered that his left arm was broken. Clad only in pajamas he was found by firemen walking dazedly back and forth in front of the house. He lost considerable blood, it was reported, and transfusions were necessary.

Origin of the fire was not determined but it was believed to have started in the kitchen and spread into the living room. Damage to building and contents was estimated at $8,000. There is some insurance.

Fellow townsmen came to the rescue and have supplied the families with some furnishings and they have moved into the vacant home of Albert Hogue, 4700 west on 185th st. The Hogue have been transferred and made the house available to Sokolowski until he can make other arrangements.

Rail Worker Injured In Fall At New Lenox

A maintenance of way worker employed by the Wabash railroad escaped critical injury when he fell from an overpass in New Lenox onto the Michigan Central roadbed, 17 feet below.

The victim, George Kolash, 26 years old, of Chicago, landed on his feet, it was said, but the jar was such that he suffered back injuries and a fractured rib.

He was taken to Silver Cross hospital in the Baskerville ambulance and treated there by Dr. Leo Mursky.

The accident occurred on Wednesday of last week, Dec. 28, about 2:20 in the afternoon. Kolash was working along the Wabash tracks when he apparently slipped and fell.

The Wabash is elevated over the Michigan Central tracks on the south side of New Lenox. He is being held in a hospital for further observation.

Sprinklers Respond To Heat Treatment

Those automatic sprinklers can be tricky, school authorities at Frankfort will agree.

During the recent cold snap some of the pipes in the system froze and broke, causing damage to some of the walls and ceilings.

Those who installed the sprinklers sent men to the school and began a mop-up and repair operation.

These sprinkler systems are made and designed so that when temperatures in a room reach a point as to start a blaze the seal on the sprinkler heads is melted and down pours the water.

Last Thursday in hastening the drying action on the new ceiling in the office workmen brought in an electric dryer. It was a dryer that threw quite a bit of heat. Someone left it on too long. The sprinkler seals let go. Now the room is being dried out again the long way.

Alpine Violet Plant Of Month, Says Park Dist.

Chicago Park district plant of the month for January at Garfield and Lincoln Park conservatories is the cyclamen indicum, also called the Alpine violet. Troy E. Standard, assistant chief horticulturist for the park district, has chosen the cyclamen because of its popularity at this time of the year as a house plant. It has a variety of coloring and bears a profusion of blossoms which are long-lasting.

The plant is a native of Europe and Asia; some varieties are abundant in Switzerland and Italy. It belongs to the primrose family but the flower resembles a violet and it is commonly called Alpine violet. The cyclamen plant is low with a flat-topped tuber bearing a mass of showy attractive flowers; the colors range from white through pink to reddish purple. The deep green leaves, borne on long stems, are often marbled with pale green or silver.

It is not difficult to carry a cyclamen plant over from one year to another. When the flowers have faded gradually withhold water and keep the plant dry in a dormant condition all summer. In August take it out of the pot, remove the soil and replant in a smaller pot. Use a mixture of two parts leafmold, one part sand and one part good garden loam. Add a spoonful of soot from a flue or bits of finely-broken charcoal to increase the size and brilliancy of the flowers. The cyclamen will not thrive if allowed to dry out or if water stands around the roots. Keep the plant out of doors, but shaded from the mid-day sun, and water regularly. When the temperature drops to 50 degrees take the plant inside to a sunny window to promote maximum bloom. Plant of the Month is a regular feature at the plant conservatories and the honor plant is displayed

Boxcars On Rubber

We probably shall draw a letter or two from "Fairplay" or "Truckdriver's Wife," written by someone connected with the trucking industry, which like some other large business firms spend considerable money every year portraying its virtues to the public, but even in the face of such risk we would like to point out that trucks and communities are nearing a crisis.

To the legislators beginning their regular session this week we would like to suggest they appoint temporary as well as permanent committees to decide which has to go --- community street systems or those big trucks.

Many cities and villages in Illinois have spent millions of dollars in local tax money to raise railroad tracks or bury them in order that pedestrian and vehicular traffic could flow faster and safer.

Now trucks, as large as box cars and when tailgating make a very fine substitute for a freight train, have taken over the streets and pedestrians and smaller vehicles must fare for themselves the best way they can.

These large trucks are of such size they are unable to turn a corner unless they block off both streets, and some of the drivers become pretty sharp at times with pedestrians or light vehicle pilots who don't get out of their way fast enough to suit them.

Perhaps the simplest thing would be for the legislatures or congress to enact laws condemning all property at intersections which are used or may be used by trucks, thus enabling them to make turns without hindrance by other vehicles. -- without expense to the trucking companies, of course.

Trucks pay a license fee, of course, some of them quite high as compared to license fees for lesser vehicles, but that money goes to the highway fund, to take care of some of the repair of the damage they do to roads. Schools and other local taxing units do not benefit from the sale of auto or truck licenses.

It would be a good thing if the states got together and reduced the dimension of trucks and trailers permitted to travel on streets and highways. Such a suggestion, coming from an official source, would of course cause leaders in the trucking trade to loose long howls of anguish. The public, which suffers from turning streets and roads into freight yards, occasionally cries out in protest, but apparently not loud enough. It would be fair to assume this of course, because certainly they aren't building these truck trailers any smaller.

Dimensions for trucks, we must agree, should be uniform because otherwise they might have difficulty with the law in traveling from one state to another.

We agree that we need trucks for transport, for the time being. No telling when shipment of goods will be handles entirely by air for long hauls, perhaps by missiles. Deliveries then could be accomplished by smaller trucks.

Meanwhile we are stuck with the trucks so lets see if something can be done about halting their growth.

On Second Thought

By GLENN F. LOGAN
Holiday meals today are no longer tests of patience and endurance for youngsters that they once were. The same may be said of other occasions when bountiful tables are spread.

There was time when a second table was spread with what remained of the first table, plus the extra quantities that housewives of that time provided for in preparing a meal for company.

Children waited for the second table, as did some of the women whose time during the first serving was taken up with passing the various dishes to the guests and rushing in reinforcements from the kitchen when table.

The presence of the women served two purposes -- it gave them opportunity to stoke up their energy and at the same time they acted as a disciplinary force to curb their ravenous young from too vigorous an onslaught on the vlands with knife, fork and spoon.

Even a spoon played too strong can inflict a slight wound. The young, of course, were excluded from the dining room and banished to some other place in the house or out of doors, according to the season.

And as they sat or stood, catching tantalizing whiffs of this dish and that and growing hungry by the minute they began to wonder if would ever get anything to eat. Perhaps when the grownups finished and someone came to call them it would be to find their emaciated bodies scattered about the room, cold in death, victims of starvation. The grownups would be sorry but what is sorrow. How much better it would have been if an adult now bowed in grief had brought in a few chicken legs and slices of ham and beef -- even big slabs of bread and butter topped with jam or jelly to tide them over until they could have something to eat.

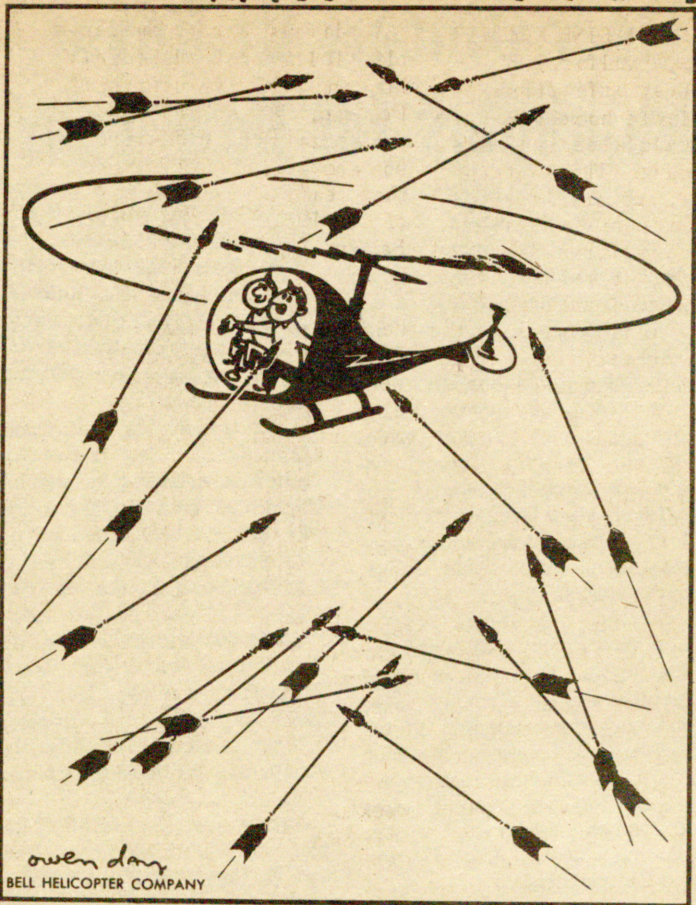

Sometimes, when the grownups seemed to dally more over their meal, spending valuable time in talking when they could be eating, the waiting young grew fearful. Perhaps this time the adults were going to really clean out the kitchen. They never had but one can never tell when catastrophe may strike so scouts were sent out to reconnoiter the situation and report back.

Children today don't have these agonizing waits and worry. They are fed either first or at the same time as the adults, at side tables or TV trays.

This may cause some parent a brief delay before being able to get down to the business of filling his or her plate. On the other hand they don't have to face a group of youngsters pacing back and forth like hungry tigers (and looking something like one, too, out of the eyes) or see them huddled down on the floor with patient, tragic faces.

My Grandfather Logan went on a visit to relatives in downstate Illinois one time, coming from Missouri. He made part of the journey by train, part of it on horseback which was quite a popular form of transportation in those days.

He recalled that he spent a week at one relative's home out in the country and on Sunday the folks rather spread themselves on dinner. Not only did they have a kinsman there from a distance but they also had the pastor who served a number of churches in the area, riding from point to point.

Presence of a preacher at Sunday dinner always called for a big meal. Pastors received little cash in those times and so, in a manner of speaking, were forced to live on the country.

Maybe they didn't know when or where the next meal was coming from; maybe they were kindly men who hadn't the heart to say "No" when his hostess insisted.

"Brother, do have some more of this chicken... the ham is tasty and the duck is good altho there is mighty little meat on a duck -- but we have plenty of them -- and do have some of these potatoes and biscuits... you'll find these cherry preserves go well with the biscuits, and this grape jelly or the currant... now how about some more of the roast beef and the squash and 'scaloped corn...' "

Maybe they were like a lot of other men of that day... they ate hearty. Maybe it was a case of big meals make big appetites. Certainly preachers were accustomed to big meals and if stories of their feats as trencherman has foundation they had big appetites. Certainly preachers as trenchermen have foundation they had big appetites.

The one encountered by my grandfather on his Illinois visit had a very good appetite, he said.

My grandfather's appearance might be said to have carried top billing because many of the relatives had not seen him for some time but certainly the presence of Brother Morgan, a new preacher in the area rated high as an added attraction to swell the number of diners.

As usual there was quite a number of youngsters waiting for the second table and they were having quite a wait.

Everyone appeared to be in good appetite, my grandfather said, but the preacher was in superb form. He was a big man, to begin with, and to consider his upholstery had missed few meals in his life.

In the course of his table jousting the divine had polished off a sizable chicken, my grandfather said, besides copious helpings of roast pork, mashed potatoes, stewed corn, scalloped potatoes, stewed tomatoes, sweet potatoes, hot biscuits, jams, jellies, honey and other minor items of food.

It was a long meal and the young ones were getting restless. Various scouts had drifted by the dining room door and apparently their reports were bad because once, my grandfather said, he heard a groan from an outer room where the starving children were huddled.

The last of the scouts was a son of the house, Billy, an 11-year-old. Apparently the knife and fork skill of the preacher caught his eye and so enthralled him that he forgot his manners and stood in the doorway.

The Rev. Mr. Morgan had reached that portion of the meal when he was attempting to balance his biscuits with the jams, honey and other spreads on his plate preparatory to getting at the several varieties of pie that stood invitingly on the sideboard.

This balancing act program was difficult. Too much jam or honey requires more biscuits, more biscuits require more butter, and then the whole cycle starts in again.

It was the butter that appeared to be the block. The divine apparently was partial to butter and he kept slashing away at the mound in the big butter dish with a skill and dexterity that would have delighted the eye of a master of the saber.

But young Billy was not pleased. Hunger and injustice filled his being. Here he was being starved that this stranger, preacher or no, might stuff himself. He watched bitterly as the preacher started out with his knife and came away with a good quarter pound of butter, and voiced his protest:

"Why don't you ride next time, Brother Morgan," he demanded, "and take it all."

Hints For Homeowners

BY: JAMES FIZZELL, ASS'T. FARM ADVISER

The official flower for the month of January is the delicate and graceful carnation.

The carnation as we know it today is the result of centuries of breeding and selection. It is a native of southern Europe. The wild carnation is small, and has only five petals, and resembles the garden pink to which it is closely related.

Carnations have been used for hundreds of years for decoration, but it was not until the sixteenth century that they came into general use and hybridization of the species began.

The large, double, perpetual flowering carnations of the commercial trade were originated by the French botanist, Dalmats, about 1840 and were introduced into the U. S. about 15 years later. Since that time, intensive hybridization and selection in this country has produced many excellent varieties and strains.

cuttings or slips. Occasionally, a plant will mutate and produce a flower of a different color, larger size, or an exceptionally strong plant. Greenhouse men are always watching for these mutations or as they call them, sports. When a sport occurs, the florist saves the plant and takes cuttings. The new mutation then becomes known as a selection and is sent to universities to be tested. If it is superior to varieties being grown, it is propagated and sent to commercial greenhouses where it replaces older varieties.

The two most common varieties grown in America today are the Littlefields, which all originated from a salmon-colored variety, Sidney Littlefield; and the Sims which originated from a bright red, William Sims.

Through selection of sports from these two original seedlings, have come a multitude of colors ranging from white and light pink through reds and salmon, and even yellows and a new, orange colored variety. Each selection carries in its name an indication of which var-

Business & Finance

BY MAURICE P. ANGLAND
As the new year starts out, many of the analysts are predicting that the first quarter of 1961, will show little change over the last quarter of 1960, but the second and third quarters are expected to report more profitable results.

The stock market is obviously anticipating business to show an upturn in the second or third quarter. The securities market usually anticipates general business trends by four to six months.

Forecasts expect an increase in the construction industry. F. W. Dodge Corporation which has long been considered as leading reporters on the construction industry, expresses belief that this industry is likely to be the brightest aspect of business in 1961. Construction, and related industries, usually accounts for about 10 per cent of the total national business and maintenance for another five per cent.

The highway program is expected to have a boost as well as public building activity by state and local governments. The new administration has expressed its intention to foster an increase in residential building. This, of course, would have an impact on appliance sales.

Some of the investment advice are recommending that investors consider some of the depressed cyclical issues such as the oils, steel, aluminum, automotive parts, and industrial equipment stocks. They also mention paper and pulp industries as worthy of attention at this time.

It is rather generally agreed, that the new administration will probably take definite steps to aid areas in which there has been considerable unemployment.

We in the suburbs should be interested in the lead article in the December 28, 1960 issue of Financial World, titled "Urban Renewal May Spark Coming Up-Turn."

The article points out that the big cities have been losing the middle income residents to the suburbs and gaining population in the lowest income brackets.

Due to lack of what is considered scientific planning of their areas, since World War II, the course of the cities has been downward. As population leaves, residential real estate values decline and the average per capita income declines as the middle bracket earners leave the cities.

The article notes that as the middle and upper bracket income earners leave the city, its per capita income drops rapidly and at the same time there is a considerable increase in municipal costs as to fire, police, etc. services for lowest income segments of the population who have congregated in the cities. Their real estate valuations and taxes are lowering due to unwillingness of individual property owners to invest in improvements where the income does not justify the investment.

The new administration has expressed itself as having urban renewal projects as a leading objective. Such an objective must involve large sums in replacement of slums and deteriorated buildings. Only a lety it originally came from. Examples are Tangerine Sim and light pink Littlefields.

Littlefield carnations are exceptionally well adapted to growing conditions around Chicago. The Chicago produced Littlefields are known throughout the country for their strong stems, large size, and bright color.

Stop at your local florist, he can show you examples of all the varieties.

Groups interested in learning more about carnations can secure a free film showing the production of these lovely flowers. Contact my office at the Cook County Farm Bureau, Clearbrook 3-6441, or the Illinois Allied Florists, Chicago, for information.

governmental agency can create the investment climate which will be needed to entice private investment in urban renewal.

It is expected that when urban renewal really gets under way, the business generated by this activity will be substantial for several years.

Peter therefore was kept in prison; but prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him. (Acts 12:5)

When Herod imprisoned Peter, the church prayed without ceasing unto God for him. The prison doors were opened, and Peter gained his liberty. His fearless witnessing for Christ was used to change other lives.

In his book Wellsprings of Immortality, Starr Daily tells of an incorrigible prisoner thought to be beyond redemption from a life of crime. But through prayer he began to examine his life and seek for a way of recovery from bondage to crime. He decided that in every situation he would do the thing that led to the most reasonable and beneficial results. He prayerfully made this choice in each situation and carried through.

His life was changed. At length he was set free from prison and became a useful citizen. Here prayer changed a life and opened prison doors.

PRAYER: Dear Father, we thank Thee for forgiving us of the sin that once made us prisoners. We thank Thee for Jesus Christ, Thy Son, who has come into our hearts in answer to prayer and set us free and at liberty to serve Thee. Thanks be unto Thee, through Him, our Redeemer, Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: Prayer is the key by which we obtain our liberty in Christ. B. M. Ketchersid (Tennessee)

Escorted down the aisle by her father, the bride wore pure silk Peau de Soie gown with empress style bodice and hand beaded neckline trimmed with imported Alecan lace with seed pearls and iridescent rhinestones. Long pointed sleeves and a chapel train completed the gown. The fingertip silk illusion veil was held in place by a gold Swedish princess crown, a gift of the groom's parents in Sweden. The bride wore tiny pearl cultured earrings as her only jewelry which were a gift from the groom.

Miss Janet Bergan, Maid of Honor, was gowned in a red velvet ballerina dress with sabrina neckline. She wore a white fur hat and carried a white fur muff with red roses and gold leaves; her jewelry consisted of a single strand of pearls. Candelighiter, Miss Joyce Woodman, cousin of the bride, wore a white taffeta dress trimmed in red velvet which was made identical to the Maid of Honor. A white fur hat and a red rose and white carnation wrist corsage completed her outfit. Jonathan Woodman, brother of the bride, also served as candelighiter.

Preceding the bride to the altar was Sharon Rebecca Mason, flower girl, who wore a white taffeta dress with red roses embroidered on the bodice and short puff sleeves; completed with a full skirt and cummerbund. She carried a white basket filled with rose petals. Terry Ray Darnall, ringbearer, wore a tuxedo and carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

David D. Woodman, brother of the bride, attended the groom as best man and Marlan Pennington and Jonathan Woodman were ushers.

Mrs. Woodman, the bride's mother, chose a silk brocade emerald green dress with pink brown hat and gloves as her accessories. A pinkbrown cymbidium orchid corsage completed her outfit.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors to 250 guests. White mums and silver tapers decorated the bride's table from which party sandwiches, mints, nuts, punch, coffee and cake were served by Mrs. Joyce Schulz, Miss Ann Sims, Mrs. R. Johnson, Mrs. R. Koerber and Mrs. F. Mohr.

64-52 Victory By Comets Big Surprise, Knights Favorites

BY BILL SLUIS

The Braidwood Comets proved to be the Cinderella of the Lincoln-Way holiday tournament, and won the championship by beating favored teams Grant Park and Lincoln-Way. The Comets, who came into the tournament with a so-so 5-3 record, pulled the upset of the year by downing the powerful Lincoln-Way Knights 64-52 in the final game, Lincoln-Way suffered its first loss in twelve outings.

In opening round activity, which took place on Wednesday, Dec. 28, Grant Park, Braidwood, Bradley, and Lincoln-Way beat Mommence, Manteno, Lemont, and Thornton North, respectively. Lincoln-Way won by the biggest margin, taking a 79-37 victory over Thornton North. Today's high scorer was Ken Barnett, a Braidwood sophomore who clicked for 24 tallies.

In consolation round games played Thursday afternoon, Mommence defeated Manteno 51-49 on two free throws by Bob Smith and Lemont defeated Thornton North 76-54. Dale Johnson of Lemont scored 31 points for Lemont to establish this year's tournament record.

In semi-final activity Thursday evening Braidwood slipped past Grant Park 56-53 in the first game, as Ken Barnett scored 18 for the victors. In the nightcap Lincoln-Way overcame an early threat by the Bradley Boilermakers and downed them 68-49 behind Skip Kruzich's 21 points. Jerry Ross of Bradley netted 23.

The consolation championship game, played at 7:00 Friday night, saw Lemont whip Mommence 66-53. Bill Yates bagged 19 and Dale Johnson 18 for the winners.

FINAL GAME

The final game Friday night matched Lincoln-Way and Braidwood for the championship. The outcome proved to be a 64-52 upset by the Braidwood Comets, who were paced by Tony Kriz's 18 points. Kriz made 12 of 15 free throws. Ken Barnett scored 17 and Bud Frost 16 for the Comets. For the losers, Skip Kruzich canned 26, his highest total heretofore this year. Skip hit 12 of 19 attempts from the field for an excellent 63 per cent.

The first half was fairly even. With Tony Kriz showing the way by getting 10 points, Braidwood built up a 27-22 lead at half-time. Skip Kruzich garnered 10 for the Knights. The Knights led at only one time during the first half, when with 5:00 remaining in the second quarter Skip Kruzich netted a 25 footer to give L-W an 18-16 lead.

The third quarter was exactly even, as each team scored 13 points. Skip Kruzich was red hot for Lincoln-Way, scoring ten points. The Comets held a 40-35 lead coming into the final lap.

At this time Lincoln-Way made its move. On baskets by Al Waldvogel, Skip Kruzich, and Bob Lichtenwalter the Knights fought back, tied the game, and finally took the lead 47-46. Lincoln-Way fans were ecstatic. It looked as if their heroes were to make short work of the visitors.

Then it happened. Due largely to the untimely exits of Duane Warning, Dan Fenn, and Al Waldvogel who had fouled out, Lincoln-Way fell hopelessly behind. The aroused Comets were not to be denied. With Bud Frost and Ken Barnett dumping in basket upon basket, Braidwood quickly sewed up the game. At the conclusion Braidwood had earned a 64-52 upset.

The first place trophy was presented to Braidwood. Second went to the hosts Lincoln-Way, and consolation to Lemont's Indians.

In summation this can be said. Basketball is a game of upsets. On a given night any five players can beat any other five. As long as the game is played the upsets will continue. It is this realization that has made basketball the great game that it is today.

Next Lincoln-Way game will

COMING ROUND THE BEND is Skip Kruzich, Lincoln-Way sharpshooter while the young man in black from Braidwood apparently is getting out of the way and so escape a call for blocking. On the other hand had he barged in it might have been that Kruzich would have drawn a foul for charging. It is difficult to outguess referees on these. That Lincoln-Way player at the far left is Al Waldvogel, No. 54.

Roman Church Starts Off New Year With Changes

Substantial changes in the Catholic breviary, missal and church calendar, the first in almost half a century, went into effect last Sunday, Jan. 1.

The new code of rules, as announced by Pope John XXIII July 25 of this year, will mean a reclassification of feasts in the church calendar, some changes in the celebration of mass and a shortening on many days of the breviary, or divine office recited daily by priests.

In announcing the changes, Pope John indicated that they were only a partial clarifying step in a broader program of liturgical change.

"The more basic principles affecting general liturgical restoration should be presented to the fathers at the forthcoming ecumenical council," the Pope said. He added, however, that he did not wish to delay any longer in changing the rules for the missal and breviary. Pope John said the breviary was being shortened because priests "are weighed down more each day by pastoral concerns." The shortening will be accomplished by dropping many readings from the lives of the saints and sermons of the fathers of the church.

The church calendar under the new rules will place added emphasis on that cycle of the calendar concerned directly with feasts of our Lord, e.g., Sundays, which are commemorations of the Resurrection of Jesus. It is thus more difficult for any given Sunday to be replaced by a feast from the second cycle running through the Church year, the cycle of the saints.

Some changes have been made in the celebration of Mass. On a few occasions in the year the preparatory prayers at the foot of the altar will be omitted, especially when the mass is preceded by a procession or other service. Also, the Nicene Creed will be said or sung less frequently.

The new code stresses that "The proper time for distributing Holy Communion to the faithful is during mass after the communion of the celebrating priest."

Communion has sometimes been given earlier in the mass to accommodate large numbers of persons, with the danger of obscuring the idea of Communion as the banquet after the sacrifice has been offered. It may, however, be distributed before or after mass for a reasonable cause, according to the code.

The prayers now said before the communion in the mass (Confectio, Misereatur, Indulgentiam) will be omitted. They are properly used only when Communion is given outside of mass.

The missal in its present form dates from 1568 and the breviary from 1570. During the centuries that followed many additions and partial revisions were made in the liturgical books.

In 1911, Pope St. Pius X changed the order in which the psalms are recited in the divine office. In 1955 Pope Pius XII introduced a major simplification of the breviary, leading to the present work of reform.
